

I don't claim to be a prophet simply because the piece I wrote Sunday night and published in this column Monday, "Korea — Sound of War," forecast reversal of American policy and intervention by our armed forces in the Far East.

It turned out to be virtually the unanimous opinion of American newspaper editors, arrived at simultaneously in thousands of cities.

That was Monday.

Tuesday President Truman sent American planes and ships to the aid of the South Korean Republic, attacked by Russian-built tanks and Russian-directed soldiers of the Red North Korean country; and to Formosa, where the remnants of Nationalist China are threatened by invasion from the mainland.

Wednesday Seoul, capital of South Korea, was captured by the Reds — and now the chips are down for America, sure enough. For if the Russians kick out the South Koreans and our forces along with them, America might as well run down the flag in Tokyo and write off the whole Pacific chapter as just another Will Rogers toast to our country — "which never lost a war," and never won a peace.

What's happened in Washington is simply this:

The government has suddenly decided to quit following Acheson's day-dreaming state department and check the issue where it belongs — with the military. That means MacArthur. He carries more weight in the Far East than all the frock-coated gentry in all the state departments on earth.

There's nothing complicated about the Far East problem except as the State Department lawyers make it so. In military terms it boils down to this:

Korea and Formosa were integral parts of the Japanese empire, which Americans bought and paid for when it defeated Japan in a long and bloody war. Russia is bent on stealing both.

We made the mistake in Korea — as in Germany and in Czechoslovakia — of giving the Russians an inch which they promptly sought to stretch to a mile.

Our diplomats deal in words, which the Russians like. MacArthur, soldier, and son of a soldier, deals in something the Russians don't like. And our one chance of keeping out of a major war right away is to let a soldier handle it to Russia's complete dissatisfaction.

If something happens? So what? Do you want your country to spend the next 100 years living in perpetual fright and poverty?

Better to turn the dogs loose now and see whether the Kremlin politicians will fight or run. And if they try to hold one inch of land America bought and paid for in the Japanese was somebody is going to be shot.

Washington Man Plans to Make Idle Acres Work

W. H. Etter of Washington today placed his order for 20,000 pine seedlings to be planted during the coming winter months. The planting of pine seedlings has been encouraged by the Soil Conservation Department and the Chamber of Commerce as a sound use for idle acres in Hempsstead county and as a measure which will result in an annual cash crop when the trees reach maturity.

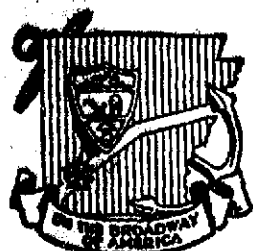

Although the planting season is during the winter months, orders for seedlings must be placed immediately in order to assure delivery. All persons desiring to plant seedlings this winter are urged to contact the chamber of Commerce or the Soil Conservation Department for necessary order blanks and instructions.

Korean Front Stabilized

Russia Officially Condemns UN Support of U. S.

London, June 29 — (AP) — Russia today condemned as illegal the United Nations security council's call for armed support of invaded South Korea.

The Russian note, addressed to U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie and broadcast in a Tass dispatch by Moscow radio, was the first official statement by the Soviet government on the Korean question since fighting started there on Sunday.

The council resolution was illegal, the note said, because:

1. Unanimous approval of the five permanent council members was needed. "Two permanent members, the U. S. S. R. and China, were absent."

(The Russians since last autumn have refused to recognize the Chinese nationalist delegation as legal representative of China in the U. N. and have sought unsuccessfully to have them replaced by representatives of the Chinese Communist regime. Soviet absence from the council meeting Tuesday was in line with their boycott, since last January, of all U. N. meetings at which Nationalist China was represented.)

2. Seven votes were needed for adoption of the resolution. It was adopted "by six votes with the participation of a seventh, Kuomintang Tsang Ting Fu, who had no lawful right to represent China."

"It is quite plain that said decision of the security council on the Korean problem has no legal force," the Soviet note concluded.

The council voted 7-1 at Lake Success Tuesday to ask all U. N. member nations to take military action against the Russian-trained forces of the soviet-sponsored North Korean government.

Those voting for the resolution, in addition to its U. S. proposer, were Britain, France, China, Cuba, Norway and Ecuador. India and Egypt, lacking instructions from their home governments, abstained. Yugoslavia, former Russian satellite, cast the only dissenting vote.

Lie Sounds Out How Far UN Will Go

Lake Success, June 29 — (AP) — Secretary-General Trygve Lie and his top aides are sounding out United Nations members on how far they will go in trying to stop the Korean conflict.

This was disclosed officially last night before Russia informed Lie that it considers sanction action by the security council illegal.

Lie already has sent all government copies of the resolution adopted 7-1 Tuesday night by the Soviet-boycotted council.

Yugoslavia voted against it. Egypt and India did not participate because they did not have instructions from home.

The resolution did not set up any procedure for finding out what aid is available to carry out recommendations that all U. N. members furnish assistance to repel the Communist Korean invasion of South Korea.

Lie and his aides contacted half a dozen countries, including Russia, in private talks with delegations yesterday. They would not specify what delegations they consulted.

It was known that Andrew W. Cordier, Lie's executive assistant, visited Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik at the Soviet delegation's Park avenue offices in New York. U. N. officials would not say whether the Korean problem was discussed.

Lie first considered, then delayed, sending telegrams to all members asking them to report in writing what they would do.

No one here expected Russian participation in anti-Communist operations but there was interest in what the Soviet answer would be.

Russia has been boycotting the security council since last January in protest against the presence of the Nationalist China. Its answer said that the vote of the Chinese Nationalist delegate Tuesday night was illegal.

The Soviet government also said that the U. N. charter specifies that all five permanent members of the council — the U. S., Britain, France, Russia and China — must vote in favor of a resolution to make it legal. It said that the absence of both Russia and Red China from the session nullified the council's action.

Communist Troop Moves in Europe Closely Watched

Washington, June 29 (AP) — Officials said today that reports of Communist bloc troop movements in Europe and the Middle East are being scanned with unusually sharp interest in the government because of the Korean crisis.

Military moves near the Yugoslav border and opposite the frontiers of Turkey and Iran have been reported to the state and defense departments by the central intelligence agency.

They were described as being the type of reports that frequently crop up at the start of the summer, when conditions are most favorable both for actual military operations and for routine training maneuvers.

Army Says No Combat Troops Requested Yet

Washington, June 29 — (AP) — The army said today there has been no request from Gen. Douglas MacArthur for authority to use army combat troops in Korea.

At the time a spokesman gave that statement to reporters, there had been no report from MacArthur on his flying inspection of the situation in Korea. A report was expected later in the day.

At the White House, Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross replied "no comment" when asked if President Truman was considering the use of ground troops.

Then Ross added: "The President's policy was outlined in his statement of Tuesday. I'm not going behind it."

In response to other questions, Ross said that Mr. Truman had not talked with MacArthur directly and was conducting all communications with him through "regular channels" — meaning the defense department.

In a forenoon "briefing" report given these additional reports at the defense department:

American casualties to date are three, and possibly six, killed and 12 missing.

Three of those killed were crewmen of a B-26 which crashed in the sea yesterday after an assault mission.

May Take Longer to Drive Communists From Korea Than Most Americans Think

By Hal Boyle — (AP) — It may take longer to drive northern Communist invaders out of Southern Korea than most Americans think.

Why? Because the United States has limited its assistance to the shipment of war supplies and battle aid by ship and plane.

These factors are hardly as immediately decisive in warfare as most civilians like to believe. Their weight takes time to make itself felt.

This will be particularly true in a mountainous land such as Korea if the Soviet-trained Communist armies have built up a hard core of well-disciplined troops. And there is reason to feel sure they have, since they have had almost five years in which to do it.

Reports from the fighting front indicate the invaders are well-equipped with modern Russian-type armor. Undoubtedly they also have great stores of weapons and ammunition left behind by the Japanese.

The next few days should give strong indications whether the Communist Koreans are only making a great test foray in force of the South's defense — or whether they are gambling on a surprise knockout.

If they do choose to fight to the bitter end, then they may be as difficult to drive back as the northern Communists were in Greece.

Bombing cities they have taken is certain to annoy the Southern Koreans who live there, but it is doubtful that this will really dislodge the invading troops. They won't stay in the cities. They will move like herds of locusts across the rugged countryside, just as the Russians, wearing tattered clothing but carrying brightly polished machine pistols, swept across Germany to the

Excise Taxes Slashed, New Levies Assessed

Washington, June 29 (AP) — The house today approved the $1,010,000,000 excise taxcutting bill, "veto proofing" it with a $433,000,000 a year boost in new levies on big corporations.

The vote was 375 to 14 for the measure.

But the ultimate fate of any tax reduction at all may be tied to the Korean war.

The house action tossed the bill over to the senate, which may take it, revise it, or kill it, depending on developments. Whether or more money for American fighting equipment will be needed.

The house, with its vote and with its work far ahead of the senate, then made ready to begin tomorrow a 10-day July Fourth recess.

The tax bill would slash the excises, many of them imposed in World War II, on jewelry, furs, pocketbooks, movies, baby bottle warmers and scores of other items.

These cuts might become effective September or October 1. While slashing the excises — sometimes called nuisance or sales taxes — the measure would make up the revenue loss by the boost on big corporations, loopholes plugging and other tax law revisions.

This is the "veto proofing" process, for President Truman warned congress long ago he would approve no excise cutting bill that did not offset the revenue loss by higher taxes in other directions.

GOP Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, told the house the hike in big corporation levies "will place another depressive cloud over business and employment, while giving prices of manufactured goods another shot in the arm."

The Republican opposition, while battling for excise cuts, contended that consumers of food and other necessities ultimately would pay any increased levies against corporations.

Democratic leaders said the one-package bill is bound to pass "as is."

These factors are hardly as immediately decisive in warfare as most civilians like to believe. Their weight takes time to make itself felt.

If they do choose to fight to the bitter end, then they may be as difficult to drive back as the northern Communists were in Greece.

Bombing cities they have taken is certain to annoy the Southern Koreans who live there, but it is doubtful that this will really dislodge the invading troops. They won't stay in the cities. They will move like herds of locusts across the rugged countryside, just as the Russians, wearing tattered clothing but carrying brightly polished machine pistols, swept across Germany to the Elbe.

And guerrilla troops like these are almost as hard to destroy by airpower as if they really were locusts. They can camouflage their positions by day, and move by night. They can live off the land, scrounging as they do. They can take almost endless bombing and strafing so long as they are going forward — and morale is high.

The best and quickest way to halt them, of course, would be to pour in trained ground troops — infantry and artillery — to lock with them on the land. A regiment of marines, a battalion or two of U. S. paratroopers strategically dropped and supported, might turn the tide at once.

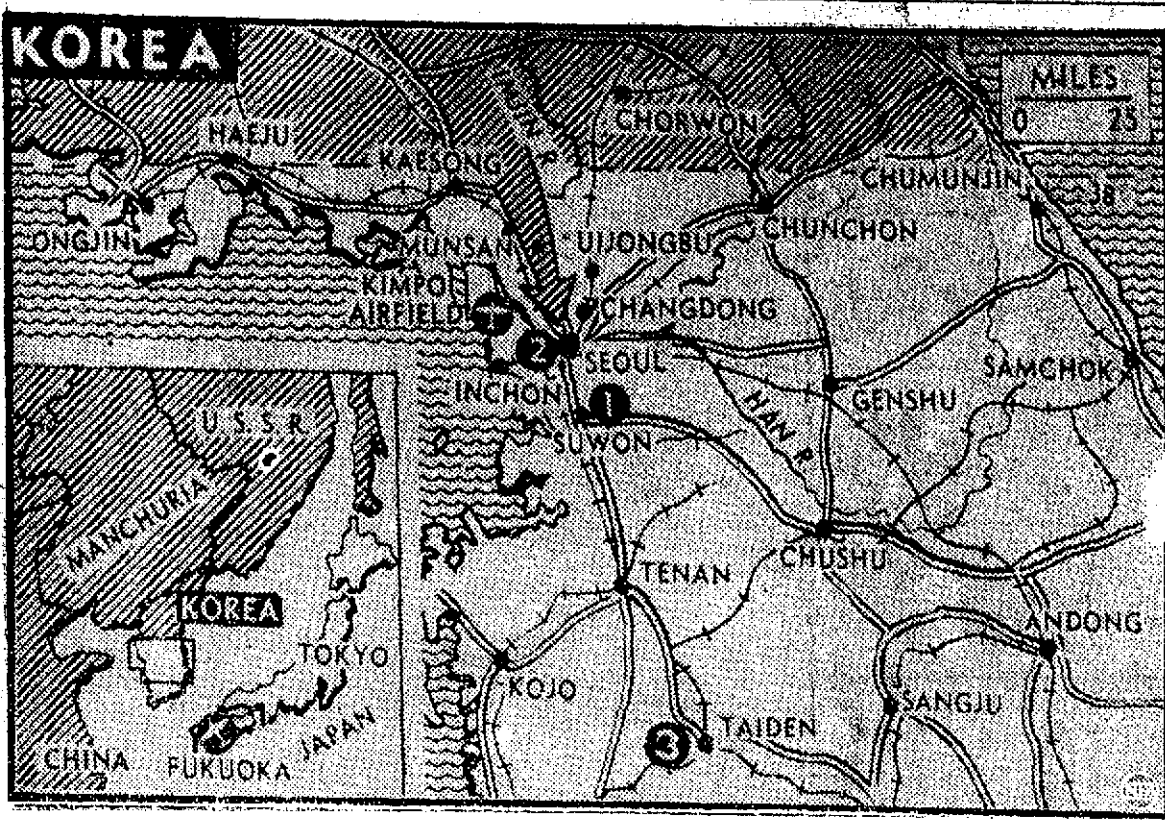

Naturally, however, the American government is reluctant to take this measure. For ground fighting means heavy casualties, and the hope is that the Korean situation may be held to an international incident rather than allowed to ripen into full-scale bloody war.

But, should the invasion continue long, there is another possible source of manpower. In 1945 I saw the last of some 10,000 Japanese troops being ferried from Korea back to their homeland.

Couldn't the United Nations authorize the recruiting of a force of volunteer Japanese troops to fight in Korea under international military leadership? This would be going only one step farther than the United Nations already has done in the matter.

And certainly it is the body that should organize the world's first mercenaries for peace. It is also simple justice that the Japanese should take a part in keeping free now the country they held in subjection themselves for almost 40 years. And I think they'd volunteer if the pay were right.

It's an idea.

Conservation Practiced by PMA Chairman

Earl N. Martindale, chairman of the Hempsstead County Production and Marketing committee, follows through in the advice about conservation which he passes on to other farmers in the county. In other words, "He practices what he preaches."

On his farm, located at Blingen, Mr. Martindale has been using the agricultural conservation program to help him protect his land against erosion and depletion since 1936. In that time he has carried out the following practices consistently: Winter legumes, phosphate and pasture improvement practices.

On Mr. Martindale's farm, some of the most serious conservation problems are erosion and humus content. To meet his problem, he has grown vetch and winter peas with oats and turned them under each year. He also rotates his pastures and cultivated fields to assure maximum soil protection.

Again this year, Mr. Martindale has his farm signed up in the 1950 agricultural conservation program. Practices to be carried out this year include applications of phosphate, limestone, and potash, green manure and cover crop, and pasture development.

Mr. Martindale operates a 234-acre farm made up of 180 acres of cropland, and pastures. He also has a 50-acre peach orchard which takes up a considerable amount of his time. The principal crops produced are cotton, peaches, truck, hay, and livestock.

Through the agricultural conservation program, Martindale is co-operating with the consumers of this country in protecting the farmland he operates against erosion and depletion. The assistance he receives under ACP represents the consumers' interest — and responsibility — in protecting the soil and water resources of the country.

Mr. Martindale says that he is proud he has been able to take part in the program. "This conservation I've carried out on my farm — with ACP help — means greater national food and fiber security," he says. "And, when what I've done on my farm is added to the ACP conservation work in other farms in Hempsstead county and on all of the farms in the country, this represents a real protection to the nation. I'm proud of the part I've had in it."

Mr. Martindale explained that the opportunity to participate in ACP is open to all farmers. Aiding farmers to make the best possible use of land to provide the nation with a balanced abundance of agricultural products — now and in the future — is the primary objective of the agricultural conservation program, according to the chairman.

The control and eradication of noxious weeds, brush and shrubs which reduce fertility and crowd out palatable vegetation is one of the means of carrying out this responsibility.

Although the eradication of such plants does not directly prevent erosion, it does help to bring back into useful production land infested with the noxious weeds or competitive plants. And it helps to keep other land from going out of production through the spread of these plants.

Says MacArthur After Tour of Battle Area

Tokyo, June 29 — (AP) — General MacArthur returned today from a dramatic tour of Korea and his headquarters said the front had been stabilized along the Han river just south of fallen Seoul.

U. S. Superforts and American naval units from Japan threatened into action.

The B-29's blasted Seoul's airfield, which was reported recaptured by southern troops.

MacArthur returned from the fighting front after seeing for himself what the situation was. He saw that the southern front had stiffened and appeared heartened.

An American fighter drove off a North Korean plane that tried to attack the unarmed C54 transport in which the commander of all U. S. forces in the Far East flew to Korea and back 15 hours later.

MacArthur and his key officers drove by automobile to the Seoul front — the toughest part of the Korean front.

The main battle has been along the Han river, which is the capital which fell to the Reds yesterday. "The situation is stabilizing," reported Press Correspondent Byrnes who made the tour with MacArthur.

returned to their base, presumably Guam. The Korean mission in Tokyo said that South Korean forces, aided by the Superfort as a scout, stormed back on the offensive. They were driving back the heavy Red concentration of Soviet-made tanks from the western sector of the capital, it asserted.

The mission also declared fierce fighting was going on at Kimpo airfield, 16 miles west-northwest of Seoul, and at Red-held Uijongbu, 12 miles north of Seoul.

The southern counter-thrust was going so well, the mission said, that army headquarters was moved back to Shinhung between Seoul and Suwon, 20 miles south. Headquarters was moved to Shinhung as the Red tanks shattered Seoul's defenses yesterday. As the situation worsened it moved farther south to Suwon.

Before the mission issued its encouraging statement, the southern forces were reported in grave condition. So bad that authoritative sources in Tokyo said some American combat troops had been placed on the alert to move into Korea "at a moment's notice."

So far no U. S. ground combat troops have been sent to the war zone.

Reports — not carried by the Associated Press — that the First Cavalry division had been ordered to the front from Japan were denied officially. A denial by the division's commander, Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, was followed quickly with another by Col. P. M. Echols, MacArthur's public information officer.

In addition to the B29s, the U. S.

has thrown F-80 Lockheed jet and F-82 twin-fuselage Mustang fighters, and B-26 Douglas invader light bombers into combat.

The air force also is airlifting supplies to the South Koreans with a fleet of four-engine C-54s and C-47s. The around-the-clock schedule was increased with the arrival of a squadron of C-54s from the Philippines.

that land that is made unfit for the production of useful agricultural products through noxious weed infestation or a thick covering of oak brush or mesquite, is just as much out of useful production as though it had been blown or washed away. The only difference is that it can be restored to production. This is why ACP assistance is provided for this practice as well as for preventing land from going out of production through erosion and depletion.

No matter what the practices, the chairman said, in each instance the aim under ACP is to make the best possible use of the land for the welfare of the people of this country.

Mr. Martindale further advises farmers of Hempstead county that agricultural limestone is available, delivered to the farm under the purchase order plan. Because of the difficulty in spreading the material when the ground is wet, and the fact that limestone may not be available next fall, the chairman urges all producers in the county who are interested in liming their soil this year, to contact the county PMA office in Hope and place their orders at their earliest convenience.

getting a breathing space in which to reorganize units and that their morale was good.

The North Korean army had made no effort to push southward across the Han river barrier.

The South Korean ground forces were being reformed along a line roughly paralleling the south bank of the Han river from Kimpo airfield to a point 55 miles eastward. There was no evidence that the North Koreans had reinforced the tank strength which has spearheaded their drive.

A spokesman said the South Koreans had lost a great deal of heavy equipment and it would take time to reorganize transportation required to move incoming American munitions and supplies to the battle area.

Talmadge Wins Race in Georgia

By CHARLES BARRETT

Atlanta, June 29 — (P) — Georgia re-nominated yesterday a governor who failed to get the most votes — red-gallused, tobacco-chewing Herman Talmadge.

A unique county unit election system headed Talmadge toward four more years of "white supremacy" rule in an era of growing unrest over racial problems.

But for M. E. Thompson, a last-ditch scrapper who refused to concede defeat, stunned many observers with his strength in yesterday's Democratic primary, equivalent to election.

Thompson held a steady lead in popular votes but that isn't what counts in Georgia — it's county unit votes.

And returns from 1,179 of 1,704 precincts, and 154 of 159 counties, gave Talmadge a lead in 116 counties with 272 unit votes; Thompson led in 38 counties with 126 unit votes.

Thompson's popular vote margin was 175,751 to 165,678.

Conservative Sen. Walter George, chairman of the senate finance committee and senior member of the foreign relations committee, swept all 107 counties reported. He was challenged for re-nomination by Atlanta Attorney Alex McLennan.

The unit system is one of the nation's strangest political devices. No other state has anything like it.

Under a scheme somewhat like the national electoral college, each county is assigned from two to six unit votes. Candidates winning a county get all of that county's units. A majority of units — 206 — is need to win.

In effect, it packs power in a host of small rural counties where Talmadge traditionally is strong. Populous Fulton county (Atlanta), for example, with six units, has one unit for about 10,000 votes. Rural two-unit Chatham county gets one unit for about 122 votes. Thus a single popular vote in Chatham county counts as much as 122 votes in Fulton.

Miss Kathryn Hatley and E. P. Young Jr. Wed in Church Ceremony

In a formal ceremony at six thirty o'clock on Wednesday evening, June 28, in the First Presbyterian church of this city, Miss Kathryn Hatley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Poe Hatley, became the bride of Erwin Paul Young, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Paul Young.

The Reverend Stephen Lucas Cook, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church of Houston, officiated at the beautiful single ring ceremony. Vows were exchanged before an altar of gladioli, feverfew, and white double stock. Standards of wood, and many lighted cathedral tapers in wrought iron branched candelabra formed the background for the wedding scene. Huckleberry decorated the choir arch, and choir rail. The central decoration was an arrangement of white gladioli, feverfew, and white stock, which was flanked on each side by white floor baskets of the same flowers. Each pew was marked with white satin ribbon bows.

Luther Hollamon, Jr., organist, played a program of nuptial music which included: "Reverie," Schubert's "Serenade," Traumeri," Chopin's "Perle in A Major," "Intermezzo," "Because," "Calm As The Night," and "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice." He accompanied Miss Dorothy Smith of El Paso, Texas who sang "I Love Thee," and "If God Left Only You." Miss Smith was dressed in rose pink net over taffeta, and wore a corsage of pink roses. The traditional wedding marches were used for processional and recessional.

Wallace Beene, of Hope and Remmel Young of Fort Smith lighted the tapers while Mr. Hollamon played "To A Wild Rose." Schubert's "Ave Maria" was played softly during the ceremony.

Entering with her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was gown in a model of white imported French Chantilly lace in a rose pattern, designed with fitted bodice, long sleeves with calla lily points over the hands, and an off-the-shoulder neckline edged with scallops of lace. The bouffant circular skirt over stain and net, terminated in a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of French silk illusion, was attached to a cap made of the lace matching her gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Robert Gibbs Reaves of Arkadelphia, was her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Mary Jane Gray of Triffin, Ohio, was maid of honor. They wore period gowns of Nile green marquisette over taffeta. Their crownless hats of the same material and color were trimmed by a taffeta bow at the brim. Their colonial bouquets were of pink roses with Nile green streamers falling to the hemline of their dresses.

Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Eberle of Warren, Miss Kate Sparks Bemis, of Prescott, Mrs. George Frazer, Mrs. Alice Lile of Hope. They were gown in similarly in hyacinth and rose pink colored marquisette gowns and carried colonial bouquets. Their crownless hats, and mits were of matching material.

Little Miss Kathryn Gibbs Reaves, of Arkadelphia, niece of the bride-elect was flower girl. She wore a white period model of net over taffeta and carried a white satin basket filled with rose petals.

Kinard Wesley Young was his brother's best man and groomsmen were Wallace Beene, and William Routon of Hope; Robert Gibbs Reaves, Arkadelphia, Remmel Young and William Drake of Fort Smith, and Joseph B. Hurley of Camden.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hatley chose a mauve pink net and lace gown over taffeta and her flowers were a corsage of gladioli. Mrs. Young, mother of the bridegroom, wore sapphire blue marquisette lace over taffeta and a corsage of Poincettia roses.

A reception at Hope Country club followed the ceremony. The porch and reception rooms were decorated with a background of huckleberry, smilax, and fern for massive containers of shasta daisies and other garden flowers.

Assisting in receiving were Mrs. Tom McLarty, Miss Beryl Henry, Mrs. Kline Snyder, Mrs. R.E. Cain, Mrs. C.C. McNeill, and Mrs. F.D. Henry.

On the mantel in the reception room was an artistic arrangement of magnolia blossoms and leaves. The bride's table was covered with a cloth of white organdy over white satin. The bride's tiered wedding cake centered the table and was encircled with gardenias. White tapers in silver candlesticks shed soft light over the cake which was served by Mrs. Roy Anderson, Punch was served from a side table by Miss Dorothy Henry, and Mrs. Stephen Lucas Cook of Houston.

Serving were Mrs. Thompson Evans, Jr., Mrs. L.W. Young, Mrs. William Routon, Miss Barbara Larone, Mrs. Don Westbrook, Miss Dorothy O'Neal, Mrs. Mitchell Williams, and Miss Carolyn Trimble.

Assisting in dispensing court-esses were Mrs. F.Y. Trimble, Mrs. Lloyd Spencer, Mrs. A.K. Holloway, Mrs. Ernest Wingfield, Mrs. John P. Vesey, Mrs. Lloyd Kinard, and Mrs. John S. Barlow.

Tax Slash Not Likely This Year

Washington, June 28 — (AP) — America's military move against Communist aggression in the Far East has raised doubt that there will be any tax reduction this year.

Senate Democratic Leader, Louis, of Illinois, said, however, that the fate of the bill to cut excise taxes a billion dollars, now being debated in the house, "depends upon developments."

"We must stand by and wait," he said. "There is no indication now that more money will be needed for the military."

One influential Democrat told reporters that if the development at Korea and Formosa "means war, we will have a tax increase in 3 days—not a decrease."

However, he said the house is likely to pass the excise reduction bill and that "the senate can stop it."

The tax debate opened yesterday with Rep. Doughton of North Carolina, 87-year old Democratic legislation manager, telling the house it had better accept a boost in taxes on big corporations—or run into a presidential veto.

Republicans attacked the bill as a "hoax" and a "phony" tax reduction that merely proposes to

New York, June 27. — Miss Ethel Merman jests at wounds in an essay in Cosmopolitan called "I'll never go there any more."

A jibe at a pitiful horde of bewildered, busted American P's who phoned for woods and temples hills and took to the route of the five-fifteen. As a replaced D. P. of the Second Wave, which washed over the high-suburban out-back just as the grand panic of '29 really got going, I share Miss Merman's opinion of the land of away-from-it-all but her cynicism is bad.

This girl is a perfect example take taxes out of the left pocket of the taxpayer's pants instead of the right pocket.

The measure embodies a $433,000,000 a year boost in taxes on big corporations, to help offset the revenue loss from excise reductions — a stipulation that President Truman has laid down as a condition to his approving any excise measure.

of the utter lack of civilization and practical uselessness of the New York slicker. Put her down in primitive conditions to shift for herself and could she make 'ye out of wood-ashes, soap out of animal fat, cloth out of flax and assorted half-combings, make her own shoes and grind her own flour? Neither could I and neither can anyone else, including the natives, and the truth of that was dramatized in the great blizzard of, say, 1834, or so, when the power lines went down and the oil-burners failed so the pipes froze and we even ran out of water because the pumps are electrical.

That was an embarrassing mishap. We were hardy pioneers in boots and ski-suits, who thought nothing of fifty miles on ice and sleet and had learned to slow just the right degree to come out of a spin on the long hill down to the creek. But the power-line was our life-line and the A, and P, our staff of life and there wasn't a cook in a 20-mile radius could make bread much less make the flour to begin with.

It seems, on reflection, that one of the neighbors, two or three ridges away, with a primitive water-wheel rehabilitated at vast expense out of the profits of advertising and public relations on Park avenue, used to amuse himself making water-ground buckwheat flour. He gave me a little sack of it once that was around the house for years but this was all so futile that I even forgot the

'Jamboree' Tent City Going Up

By ED CREAM

Valley Forge, Pa., June 28 — (AP) — The nation's newest and fastest-growing city — officially dubbed "Jamboree 1950" — shot up like a jet-powered beanstalk today.

It's only a tent town, to be sure — a soon-to-be-torn-down boomtown along the silty Schuylkill river.

But practically any of the 30,000-plus boys scouts and leaders who will be in residence by tonight would trade you New York, Philadelphia and a dozen other metropolises for a single section of the 625-acre tract that houses their second national jamboree.

By Friday, official opening day, some 47,000 will be on hand — about five times the number of the frost-bitten soldiers that stood by Gen. George Washington in these same rolling hills in the hard winter of 1777-78.

It's by no means wintry as the scouts arrive 173 years later. A merciless sun has driven the temperatures into the 90's. Sunburn reddens the cheeks of the scouts and scorches the bald pates of some of their leaders.

But they fall to with a will at the task of getting everything shipshape by opening day — when President Truman, if the world situation permits, will come here from Washington to address the jamboree as honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America.

Trained in self-reliance, the point I wanted to make. Another guy cut his own hair.

As I say, we were the Second Wave. Irvin S. Cobb had been a platoon leader of the First Wave of the new pioneers who rediscovered Westchester and the Connecticut Hitherland. He was a work-away Daniel Boone, turning his experience to profit with essays on the little delights and painful adventures of the abandoned farmer. He told of roughing it in the double-breasted bloomers of the time and make moderately merry at his own expense. But to his own ultimate salvation. At least he stood it off, whereas several thousand others of his time and many more thousands in mine, just poured in money and for various reasons, finally vanished leaving the ground to the never-falling next generation of yearning young nesters.

Around our place, the old timers had bricked up their chimneys as soon as stoves came in but we would be quaint at whatever cost so we tapped for hollow sounds, unbricked them and commented down-the-nose of the blackness of those souls who had hid from sight the beautiful match-stick mantels, dutch ovens and verough iron cranes. We restored them and then paid the yokels lavishly to cut up our own chestnut and kept the furnace firing eight-cent oil to replace the heat that was going up the flues.

The best walls there are for dwellings are made of smooth white plaster but our Second Wave was going in for weathered barnboards with a silver sheen and homely knots and splinters, very bad for the eyes. Those carpenters would shake their heads and finally say "well, I guess you know what you want" and yield to our strange way. They were very social carpenters. They would always lay down their tools, light up, offer you a cigarette and discuss the most trivial things to exhaustion, plumbers, too. The mad rush of modern life hadn't affected them.

In Florida, about this time, Addison Mizner, the fabulous brother of the fabulous Bill, that classical rascal, liar, rake and raconteur, was building mansions for the Wall street and Tulsa millionaires, and a drinking room of pecky cypress with a porky cypress bar was standard equipment. Pecky cypress is merely rotten and defective wood with great discolored runnels streaking the wide boards. But somehow the quality of peckiness had become aristocratic and the price had gone up as the supply of diseased trees ran thin. The Mizners were resourceful, though, and a friend passing Addison's busy sawmill heard gunfire and, peering in, found the mastermaking pecky cypress with slouchwise shots from a .22 rifle.

Miss Merman observes that the movement of the country has become a reaction now with slums ripening into ugly blossom in Stamford as more and more thousands displace themselves from the city of New York and scuffle back to the feeble soil for an elusive sweetness that they hope to find in life among our furred and feathered friends. The trouble may be that they don't go far enough, for you aren't far enough from New York until you are at least eight hours by plane.

"I sit out here in the pure air of the open spaces," says Martin Littleton, writing from Cody, Wyoming. "I was in the district attorney's office of Nassau County, N. Y., as an assistant for seven years and retired after one year as district attorney. I keynoted the lamentable convention of the Republican party of New York in 1936. I moved from New York about ten years ago and have since been enjoying the peace and comfort of companionship with a fairly decent class of cattle. I still have time to read and think and regret that the United States of America can prosecute eleven inconsequential goons of a gigantic conspiracy and at the same time sit in striped pants and beetle back coats and make sweet and loving sounds with the real promoters of the very same conspiracy."

CODY is far enough.

Says Congress May Adjourn on Schedule

By Jack Bell

Washington, June 28 (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lucas, in an expression of confidence that the U. S. and Russia are not going to war, said today that the goal of a July 31 adjournment of congress still stands.

Most Republicans and virtually all the Democrats made it clear they will support the President's bold move to stop communism's march in the Far Pacific by drawing an anti-Communist defense line—even at the calculated risk of war.

Lucas refused to predict that there will be any call on congress for an increase in armed forces expenditures. He said:

"I don't want to say that we will need more money for the armed forces. I don't want to be scouts do their own cooking and —under adult supervision — run their own show.

The menu is standard for all troops each day. It's been tested and pronounced filling by the Mendham, N. J., troop, which also —by invitation of national authorities—passed on the charcoal that is being used for fires.

in the position of saying we are going to have war — I don't think we are."

He added the remark about congress closing on schedule, as a token of his confidence.

The backing that was given Mr. Truman's action last night by the security council of the United States should act through the U. N.

Warren Austin, chief American delegate to the U. N., noted yesterday that the council in its cease-fire order of Sunday had called on all members to support the U. N. in carrying out the resolution. That resolution was cited by Mr. Truman as the basis for his new action.

Senator Lucas had made clear his opinion, however, that the U. S. was going ahead, no matter what the council's stand was. He said "the U. N. can't veto our action."

Nationalists Cease Fire as Ordered

By SPENCER MOOSA

Taipei, Formosa, June 28 — (AP) — China's Nationalists, assured that the U. S. Seventh fleet will protect Formosa today ordered their planes and warships to halt attacks on the Communist mainland.

Thus an uneasy truce prevails in the civil war. The Communists are free to violate it, but only at the risk of a clash with the warships, jet fighters and bombers of the U. S. Seventh fleet.

The cease fire in no way affects the Nationalist guerrillas on the mainland. They have been reported increasingly active in the South and East. For the time being they carry the burden of the struggle.

The Nationalists acted after Chiang Kai-Shek conferred this morning with Gen. Chou Chih-Jou, chief of the Chinese joint general staff, and other high officers.

It was emphasized that the cease fire is a temporary measure. The Nationalists do not consider that it ties their hands permanently. They have vowed to carry the war back to the mainland.

The American note, in which President Truman said the Seventh fleet would protect Formosa against invasion and called on Chiang to order a cease fire, arrived last night.

Senate Acts Quickly on Draft

Washington, June 28 — (AP) — Senator Taft (R-Ohio) today announced to the senate his full support of the use of American armed forces in Korea.

Taft said that any secretary of state who has been "so reversed by his superiors and whose policies have precipitated the danger of war had better resign and let someone else administer the program to which he was, and perhaps still is, so violently opposed."

Doctors Study Care of Atom Victims

By RENNIE TAYLOR
AP Science Reporter
San Francisco, June 28 — (AP) — Preparations for taking care of mass casualties in case of atom bomb attack occupied the attention of a large group of doctors at the American Medical Association convention today.

If future A-bomb blasts are like those at Hiroshima and Nagasaki about half the casualties will be burns, and many of the burns will be of an unusual nature, said Dr. Everett I. Evans, professor of surgery at the Medical College of Virginia.

The civilian population should immediately organize emergency medical systems that will not be upset in case of war, when many doctors would be called into military service, Dr. Robert Y. Flinn of the U. S. civilian mobilization office, advised.

There is no great likelihood that the water supply of any large city would be poisoned by radioactive substances in the event of an atom bomb attack, said Brig. Gen. James P. Cooney, atomic energy commission radiation expert.

Burns from atom bombs are different from the ordinary burn because of the extreme heat unleashed, Dr. Evans reported.

Scalds from hot water or steam involve temperatures from 140 to 158 degrees Fahrenheit. Those from ordinary flames temperatures of 570 to 750 degrees in the flash. The heat at the very center of an A-bomb explosion has been estimated at figures ranging from 20 million to 50 million degrees.

This A-bomb heat is dissipated greatly with distance. However, in Japan the bombs produced high intensity burns, called flash burns, for a mile or more in all directions, Dr. Evans said.

Dr. Evans and colleagues worked out plans for treating severe burns after handling 124 cases in Virginia. He projected his plan for an A-bomb stricken city of 250,000 population.

The city won't have enough blood and plasma to handle the thousands of severely burned. This means the medical workers will have to turn to substitutes. Relation and water is one. Dextran, a kind of sugar, and water, is another.

Blood or plasma are used to combat shock in badly burned persons. The face and buttocks are especially bad areas for producing shock, Dr. Evans said.

385 Due to Die on July 4 Holiday

Chicago, June 29 — (AP) — Three hundred and eighty-five may die, and the biggest traffic jam in history will pile up in the 102 hours between Friday evening and midnight of July 4, the national safety council predicted today.

Of the millions who take to the highways for the holiday about 385 won't get home. They'll be the unfortunate ones who trips will end in morgues and mortuaries, victims of their own or "the other fellow's" carelessness.

"Nearly all drivers know by now that holidays demand extra caution and behave accordingly," the council said in a statement.

"But a certain reckless minority will cause about 385 deaths and uncounted injuries if past experience is repeated again this year." The council said 36,000,000 vehicles will be on the move during the four days. They will use 370,000,000 gallons of gasoline in rolling up 5,600,000,000 miles.

Arkansas Drivers Cautioned

Little Rock, June 29 — (AP) — Don't let death spoil your holiday. That was the advice given today to motorists in advance of the long Fourth of July holiday period.

It came from Director Herman Lindsey of the Arkansas State police who added: "Drive carefully and be alive on July five."

He said too much speed was the cause of most fatal accidents. Police records show that during July 1-2-3-4 last year six persons were injured fatally in Arkansas highway mishaps. There also were six highway deaths in the 1948 holiday period.

There were fewer fatal accidents for other holidays. For the two-day Thanksgiving period and the three-day Christmas period in 1949, three persons lost their lives during each holiday. In 1948, four persons died in highway accidents during the period.

Lindsey added that Arkansas highway fatalities this year are 10 per cent. only 7 deaths, under the corresponding period last year.

Friday, July 7 — Texarkana for dedication of new streets, and Magnolia for a talk at night.

Saturday, July 8 — unannounced.

DOROTHY DIX Teen Questions

Dear Miss Dix: Will you please answer these questions: (1) Do you think it wise to spend much money on a high school girl? (2) How can a boy tell if a girl really cares for him, or isn't there any way to tell? (3) Is it best for a high school boy to go steady with a girl as long as possible? (4) Every time I go to a dance with a girl a certain girl her family pay my way. If they didn't I couldn't go out with her, as I have no money of my own. I love her so much I can't seem to keep away from her. Please tell me what to do.

L.K.
Answer: (1) A schoolboy shouldn't spend much money on girls because it isn't his own money that he is spending. It is his parents' and he should make as few demands upon them as possible. (2) There is no absolute infallible way of telling whether a girl is in love with you or not, since even the most apparently artless maid-on is adept in dissimulation. But, as a general thing, a girl in love gives plenty of indications of the state of her feelings for you to judge by. Is she always hanging around and contriving accidental meetings? A girl in love is generally as much underfoot as a cat. Are You First Choice?

Does she pass up other boys for you? If she breaks dates, watch out. She is only using you for a stand-by and a filler-in when no more glamorous youth appears on the scene. Does she make opportunities for you to be alone, or does she always want to be in a crowd? Does she come down with her hat on ready to step out when you call, or does she prefer spending a quiet evening at home listening to you talk? Does she try to save your money, or merely use you as a means to a good time? Is she unselfish toward you?

(3) I think it is foolish for school girls and boys to go "steady" with any particular boy or girl. They make a mistake in tying themselves down so early. They should room around and have many contacts with many different types of boys and girls, for in that way only can they find out what they really want later on in a husband or wife.

(4) You must be a nice boy and one that a girl's parents approve of if they are willing to pay for the tickets for you to take their daughter out. There is no harm in accepting such favors occasionally, but don't do it often. It will break down your moral and your self-respect. It won't be long now until you are out of school and able to earn money. Wait until then to show girls a good time.

Dear Miss Dix: My wife is neat, attractive, energetic, a splendid cook, economical and a model housekeeper. The house is always dark and dreary because the blinds are down to protect the carpet from the sun. Even on the hottest nights all the windows and doors are closed to protect the curtains. She knows each blade of grass on the lawn by its first name and it is exactly the length of its fellow. She will spend hours preparing a delicious meal, then make me up one side and down the other, but I am sick and tired of the house. I am sorry for you, Harry, but when a woman gets the house-keeping complex as badly as your our house and you may wager all the tea in China that no baby's gooey fingers will ever mar the polish on our furniture. What to do?

HARRY
Answer: I too, have met the woman who was so intent on being the model housekeeper that she missed entirely making a home. I too, have been in houses that were just as sanitary and clean and uncomfortable as a model jail and where every inmate was as well-disciplined and had as little personal freedom as if he were a prisoner.

I have known women who were such meticulous housekeepers that they turned their own children out on the streets to play to keep them from messing up things in their own home, and whose husbands wouldn't have dared to lie down on a couch, no matter how tired they were. And I haven't wondered that the husbands and children of such women fled from their homes to homes presided over by sloppy women whose houses were places of comfort and rest and cheer in which everybody relaxed and had a good time.

I am sorry for you, Harry, but when a woman gets the house-keeping complex as badly as your wife has it, she is incurable. The only recourse is to join some comfortable homelike club.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married a year and a half to the man in the world. He has a good job and a good salary. We have lived with them and supported them. My husband and I both work hard every day while they sit around and have a good time. Don't you think it is up to them to get out and look for a job and give us a break?

WORMING
Answer: If a mother is old and helpless it is certainly a son's duty to support her, but if she is middle-aged youngish, and able-bodied there is no reason in the world for her to festoon herself. Like a milestone around her married neck. She should get out and look for a job. So should the sister. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

MURDER LIQUIDATED

Copyright 1950 by Julius Long NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Before Sen. Corbett, special investigator at Arizona, was to tell his chief, Justice, how he had sent him to the state prison, he had to tell him how he had sent him to the state prison. The inter-office unit cracked alive. Key Kennedy said: "Mr. Keever wants to see you, Ben. At once!"

PAUL WARING, first assistant attorney general, was with Keever. Waring, one of the few men around the office who didn't look insignificant in Keever's presence, was an old hand at politics, having held several important appointive jobs. I had a hunch that he had been quietly building up a statewide following through the years. He fixed a coldly critical gaze upon me. He had brought Keever a beef, and I knew it.

Keever eyed me sourly, and I saw that he had a file open in front of him.

"What's this I hear about the McGreggor case? Paul tells me you gave McGreggor a clean bill of health!"

W. G. McGreggor was the president and almost sole owner of the McGreggor Mutual Casualty Company, an outfit specializing in automobile accident insurance. The state insurance division had taken over the assets and started liquidation.

I had investigated the criminal aspect of McGreggor's activities, with a view to prosecution if he had defrauded his stockholders and policy holders. In a mutual company a policy holder is as liable as a stockholder for deficiency assessments, more so in many states.

McGreggor and his daughter, Sylvia, who had worked in his office as his private secretary, had lived frugal lives, taking no money from the business and putting every penny back into it. A series of bad breaks had reduced their resources to a point where they no longer could cover the outstanding liability claims resultant from damage suits against their assured.

By the state law the insurance liquidator Colonel Winton automatically had taken over the company when it fell short of the minimum deposit requirement. So far as I could see, W. G. McGreggor had gone broke simply because of bad luck in having an abnormal number of damage suits filed against the people he had insured.

"Does Mr. Waring seem to think that McGreggor should be prosecuted?" I asked innocently.

"I certainly do," Waring said with loud emphasis. "The record shows that McGreggor held back for 30 days a complete report on the number of outstanding damage suits! He deliberately violated the law in doing so and permitted scores of other people to buy policies of his company."

Keever frowned. "It's as serious as for a bank cashier to accept deposits after he knows that his bank is insolvent. Why didn't you mention this in your report?"

"Because that much was already in Mr. Waring's report," I answered coolly but with an undertone of anger.

KEEVER was not placated. "If Mr. Waring had not come to me with a vicious protest I never should have noticed your serious omission. I don't know how you could have white-washed McGreggor when he unlawfully sold policies after he knew his company was insolvent!"

"Sure, he knew it would be insolvent if those buzzards in the insurance division closed him down! He was trying to stave off collapse till he could scrape up the required deposit. If he had been given a little more time, he might have done it, and nobody would have lost a nickel!"

Waring sneered. "Personally I can't believe Corbett's naive theory that neither McGreggor nor his daughter ever took anything out of the business. I'll bet my shirt that they've both got plenty of money sailed away—and plenty to buy their way out of a jam!"

I faced Waring. "Are you saying McGreggor bought me off?"

Waring returned my glare. "The idea has occurred to me."

Mathias Goes After Third Straight Title

Tulare, Calif., June 29 — (P) — Decathlon Champion Bob Mathias goes after his third straight title tonight and about 20 rivals will be on deck to oppose him in the two-night test of all-round track and field ability.

The scene is Tulare's high school field, where 19-year old Bob went to school and where a year ago he won his second national AAU crown for having conquered the world in the 1948 Olympic games at London.

Some 6,000 Mathias boosters — a delegation so strong the reigning AAU people quickly granted Tulare the national meet once again — figure to be on hand.

"Our Bob," a good looking, likeable, modest young man of 19, is heavily favored to turn back the opposition.

Junior Legion to Play Here Tonight at 8

The Hope American Legion junior baseball team will again tangle with Magnolia at Fair park tonight starting at 8 o'clock.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, June 29 — (P) — Have you noticed how many kids have been signing "non-bonus" baseball contracts lately? ... The announcements have been rather emphatic about it and we don't know whether the clubs or the athletes are getting smart. ... For instance, Billy Hoelt, the Oshkosh, Wis., high school pitching whiz, took "just under $6,000" from the Tigers though he was reported to have offered above $30,000. ... Bob Wilson of Wisconsin, most valuable Big Ten footballer last fall, took the same amount from the White Sox after by-passing a $12,000 football offer from the Cleveland Browns. ... Recent issues of the Sporting News list 46 college players and 27 high schoolers as turning pro and while no figures are mentioned, it may be noted that going on contracts to the higher class farms and then the kids are being shipped to class C or D teams for seasoning. ...

Post-grad work in petroleum engineering. He wants to be in the right spot to train for the 1952 Olympic tryouts. ... Ray Farnham, who was bothered by a misbehaving appendix for five years before Lew Burston persuaded him to have it removed got his banded-up nose fixed during the same trip to the hospital. ... Ray will return to the U. S. likely in September, after defending his European title. ... Golfer Bobby Locke may return to this country for a shot at some of George May's dough in August, but he won't decide until after the British Open. ... In five days, from June 21 to 25, the Montreal Royals moved from sixth place to first in the international league. They must be running that pennant race at Golden Gate park.

Cleaning The Cuff: Ben Hogan is the "Champion sportsman of the month" for June. ... General Manager Fido Murphy has put a $25,000 price tag on Victor Pilette Power, 19-year-old Negro star of the Drummondville, Que., star who is leading the provincial league in everything from hitting to steak-eating. Five major league clubs are interested in Bobby Aiello stole six bases in one game for the Batavia, N. Y. Clippers then drew six walks in a game for a second Pony league record. If that keeps on, they'll be calling him the Aiello peril.

Another Round of Upsets Likely at Albuquerque

Albuquerque, N. M., June 29 — (P) — Galleries looked today for more upsets and minor reverses like those which spoiled first rounds yesterday in the 53rd annual National Collegiate Athletic association golf tournament.

A trimmed-down field of 32 heads into second rounds today. The championship will be decided Saturday.

Dave Dennis, 23-year old Kansas university sharpshooter, fired a blistering five-under par 67 after beating Oklahoma's Jim Vickers 5 and 4 in one of the upsets.

PRESCOTT NEWS

The Crimson Clover Committee announced the arrival of its seed this week. Cards were mailed Monday to more than 10 farmers who ordered seed for fall planting.

The Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee arranged for the seed to be handled by the Avery Trading Post. The committee requests all orders to be filled not later than July 8. The demand is much greater than the supply, so any one who is unable to pick up his seed by that date is being asked to release his order to another farmer.

Officials were elated to be able to secure certified and tested re-seeding Crimson Clover for delivery in Prescott at a cost of 45 cents per lb. This cost also includes inoculation for seed. According to present prices this represents a saving of $1200 to the growers.

Some 115 growers placed orders for 12,400 lbs. to seed 620 acres. This exceeds the 1950 goal of 100 growers representing 500 acres.

McMath and Laney May Debate Issues

Little Rock, June 29 —(AP)—Are Sid McMath and Ben Laney going to revive the old-fashioned, stern warring political debate?

It seems unlikely, but—

Both the governor and the former governor have announced they'll be at Corning at 11 a. m. next Tuesday, which is July the Fourth.

It would be an ideal setting for a joint platform appearance of the two chief opponents for the Arkansas governorship.

Neither announcement — handed out by headquarters of the two candidates here — indicated that anything of the kind was planned. Apparently each just accepted an invitation to the same Independence day political rally. But there are undeniable possibilities in the fact they'll be in the same vicinity.

McMath, incidentally, is about to intensify his campaign for a second term.

After his headquarters yesterday listed his speaking engagements for next week, a McMath spokesman said the talks would be "political."

"And that's the way it'll be most of the time from here on out," he added.

For the past two weeks or longer McMath has had an unusually heavy schedule of public appearances. Most of his speeches, however, have been described as "non-political" although occasionally a few decidedly political remarks have been tossed in.

He's followed that general pattern this week even after formally opening his campaign for re-nomination at Pine Bluff last Saturday night.

Laney will have two week's hard stumping — mainly in south Arkansas but with one side trip to Morrilton — behind him by Saturday.

Laney's formal opening — at Little Rock — preceded McMath's by a week.

At Magnolia — which is the county seat of McMath's home county of Columbia — Laney last night attacked one of his favorite enemies, the proposed national fair employment practices commission.

He didn't specify just how, he thought the FEPC figured in the Arkansas race for governor.

He gave the subject a new twist when he called on Negroes to join white persons in opposing the creation of such a commission. Sponsors of the FEPC say it's designed to prevent racial discrimination in employment.

"Any interpretation of the national or state constitution that would give to any man or appointee the authority to dictate private or public affairs would result in total destruction of American democracy," Laney declared.
